ASSISTANT/ASSOCIATE/FULL PROFESSOR IN CELL AND DEVELOPMENTAL BIOLOGY OF CANCER
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS BOSTON

The Department of Biology at the University of Massachusetts Boston (UMB) seeks applicants for a full-time tenure track Assistant, or tenured Associate or Full Professor in Cell and Developmental Biology of Cancer to begin in September 2012. The successful applicant is expected to establish an externally funded research program, direct the research of students at the doctoral, masters and undergraduate levels, interact with a dynamic group of cell signaling, molecular, and cell biologists and have a research focus that will be appropriate for inclusion within the new Center for Personalized Cancer Therapy (CPCT). The CPCT is a joint program between UMB, a leading urban public research university, and the Dana Farber/Harvard Cancer Center, a world leader in research and converting discoveries into improved cancer prevention, diagnosis, and treatment. Applicants must have a Ph.D. and professional experience in cell and developmental biology of cancer or related fields and preference will be give to individuals who have a record of external funding. Applications will be particularly welcome from candidates who utilize creative experimental approaches combining molecular, cellular and developmental biology, genetics and bioinformatics, including research in model systems. Excellence in teaching at the undergraduate and graduate levels is expected. Members of underrepresented groups and women are strongly encouraged to apply. Applications should include a curriculum vitae, 3-5 representative reprints, a description of research and teaching interests, and the names and contact information for three individuals who can supply reference letters at a later date. Applications should be sent electronically to the Cell and Developmental Biology of Cancer Search Committee at biology@umb.edu or via mail to Department of Biology, University of Massachusetts Boston, 100 Morrissey Blvd., Boston, MA 02125. Questions about the position can be addressed to the chair of the search committee Dr. Adán Colón-Carmona (adan.colon-carmona@umb.edu or 617-287-6680). Review of applications will start December 1, and continue until the position is filled.
