Assistant Professor of Nursing in Child Health Nursing

COLLEGE OF NURSING AND HEALTH SCIENCES
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS BOSTON

The Department of Nursing in the College of Nursing & Health Sciences at UMass Boston invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position, specializing in Child Health Nursing, to begin September 1, 2020. Applicants must have an earned doctoral degree in nursing or a related field, have teaching and clinical experience in child health nursing, and be eligible for RN licensure in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Candidates are expected to develop or strengthen a focused program of research/scholarship. We seek candidates who are dedicated to teaching a diverse student population and are interested in integrating research, policy, and practice in the context of promoting health equity.

The College of Nursing and Health Sciences and its Office of Research offer strong internal and external mentoring programs for faculty, including assistance with grant proposal and manuscript preparation. Our faculty have interest and research expertise in health promotion across the life course, prevention and management of communicable and non-communicable disease, social and behavioral determinants of health, population health, and health policy. The Department of Nursing, along with the Department of Exercise & Health Sciences, offer a wide range of multidisciplinary collaborative research opportunities, including those with major academic, medical and community–based institutions such as Boston Children’s Hospital, Dana Farber/Harvard Cancer Center, UMass Medical Center, the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, Boston Public Schools, and other community, public and private healthcare agencies. A National Cancer Institute-funded collaborative grant with Dana-Farber/Harvard Cancer Center has strengthened and enabled partnerships, pre- and post-doctoral training, research, and community outreach initiatives.
