The Department funds graduate student travel through two mechanisms. The first is by funding travel to present papers at conferences. This mechanism will continue to follow the existing Policy of May 2013. Note that this policy requires concurrent application for funds from GSA, and that priority will be given to national and international conferences. This policy document is reproduced in its entirety below. Applications for these funds will be on a rolling basis. Please ensure that all applications are made as soon as possible after notification of acceptance to the conference.

The second mechanism is through funding seed grants for research. This is a new policy, the details of which are as follows:

- Grants will be awarded to support seed research or the development of research skills. This can involve preliminary research, participation in methods courses or workshops, or other similar research-support activities.
- The maximum amount of individual awards will normally be $500.
- These awards are competitive. They will be awarded once per semester, and the Department will normally fund 2 per semester, awarded by a faculty committee to be named by the Department chair.
- Application deadlines are November 1 and April 1.
- Funds awarded in the fall round must be used in the same academic year (i.e. by June 1 the following calendar year). Funds awarded in the spring round may only be used in the following fiscal year (which begins July 1)
- Proposals should include a one-page description of and rational for the activity being funded, and a budget. Proposals should be submitted to the Department Chair.
- Priority will be given to students who apply to other sources of funding concurrently.
- Decisions on which proposals to fund will be made by a committee of Department faculty duly constituted by the Chair.
- Upon completion of the activity being funded, the student shall submit a short report (of no more than a page) to the Department Chair.
Support graduate student attendance at academic conferences

Adopted at the department faculty meeting, May 6, 2013

The CRHSGG Department will support graduate student attendance at academic conferences with grants of up to $400, subject to the following rules:

- The student must be presenting a paper at the conference (posters count, if there is an accompanying paper).
- The student must apply concurrently for funding from the GSA.
- The Department will only fund attendance at conferences deemed appropriate by the faculty. Priority will be given to conferences that are:
  - National or international in scope and audience
  - Of high professional and academic reputation.
- Priority will also be given to presentation of thesis or dissertation work.
- The student’s project must be approved by her or his committee chair or advisor as sufficiently advanced to be ready for presentation at a major conference.
- The student must give a practice presentation to a group of faculty and graduate student colleagues in advance of the conference.
- As a general rule, the Department will support attendance at only one conference per student per year.
- After attending the conference, the student shall submit a brief report (a page or so) or blog post to the GPD within one week of returning.
- Award of support will be subject to availability of funds, and approval by the GPD and Department Chair.
