University Research Seminar
Outcomes as related by faculty participants of this Research Seminar

- “The feedback I received from the group on an R&R resulted in an accepted publication at a top tier criminology journal (Crime and Delinquency). Based on the gentle nudge from the group about the importance of networking in the Boston area, I recently participated in a research seminar at Northeastern University to share some of my latest research with the Criminology and Criminal Justice department.”

- “My participation in the URS seminar has been instrumental in developing my connections with scholars who represent a diverse range of disciplinary perspectives. As a new faculty member in a very small academic unit, my participation in the URS seminar has given me the opportunity to meet with other people and create collaborative research connections, here on campus and in the Boston community.”

- “In terms of deliverables, I have connected with scholars at Boston University who share similar research interests and have begun participating in collaborative discussions about programmatic research in the Boston community (this is the direct result of a connection I made with another URS seminar participant who has helped to network me into a group of community members who share similar interests in health disparities). I have also made significant progress on the revision of a major manuscript per feedback from my fellow participants which I will submit for review by the end of the semester.”

- "Participating in the URS seminar afforded me the opportunity to receive invaluable peer commentary and feedback (from various disciplines) on a white paper on the health status of Native Americans living in the Northeast which I am now in the process of revising and preparing to submit to the Journal of Health Disparities Research and Practice."

- “I get a clearer idea about how to complete my 4th year review package. The insights and experiences of the group enhance my understanding of responding reviews’ comments. The seminar helps me know how to manage my time between teaching and research. The sharing of faculty from different disciplines opens my eyes to see a successful scholar’s tenure path.”

- “The bunch of ideas I had swooshing around... the seminar helped me concretize those ideas and submit them in the form of a ‘thesis’ for a paper. The paper has been mostly written and an editor is interested in reviewing it. Previously the idea itself was getting rejected.”
